

Harford Addiction Awareness Night Overdose Training and Addiction Treatment

March 10, 2015 4-7 PM

University of Maryland Upper Chesapeake Medical Center
Chesapeake Conference Center

Free to attend for the public and health professionals
Carries 2 CEU's for licensed social workers

The Harford County Health Department and The Bergand Group have partnered to host an evening for friends, family, and professionals involved in the treatment and prevention of addiction and substance use.

The evening will begin with Dr. Julie Stancliff presenting the Maryland Opiate Overdose Response Program. This is an interactive educational training designed to teach family, friends, and loved ones of opiate users how to respond to a heroin or prescription opiate overdose with a life-saving medication called Naloxone.

To celebrate the opening of their new outpatient addiction treatment center in Harford County, The Bergand Group will follow with a presentation on their Therapeutic and Psychiatric Interaction with Twelve Step Programs. The Bergand Group's Medical Director, Dr. John Steinberg, and Clinical Director, Dr. Paul Giannandrea will each present one hour of continuing education credits for health professionals. Family and friends concerned or affected by addiction are welcome to attend and should find the presentation very informative.
